TOWN PLANNING; WHAT IT MEANS

Civic Awakening Among Communities.

COMMUNITY.

Town Planning Means the Guidance and Control of Community Building to Insure Social Efficiency—It Means That the Ideal Town of Yesterday Can Be Built Today.

As all evils must sooner or later find their remedy, so our abhorrent methods of city building are finding their remedy in the development of the town planning idea. Town planning means the guidance and control of community building and rebuilding with a view to insuring the highest degree of human and social efficiency and the conservation of all human resources. Communities are built for the people and not people for communities. The cities and towns should therefore be laid out and developed so as to serve the interests of the people. Parks, playgrounds, proper homes, transportation, water supply, amusement centers, art galleries, schools, museums, etc., are essentials of civilized community life. The town and city planner must co-ordinate these essentials and so humanize his plans as to embrace the highest ideals of present community development backed by a community patriotism that will stand the test of the highest standard of social well being.

The cost of community planning may be measured in dollars and cents, but a more accurate measurement is to be found in the rate of infant mortality and the daily deaths and the amount of ill health and crime that we must suffer and pay for. The well planned garden cities of England and Germany are teaching us the lesson that health, morals and industrial efficiency are possible of control by proper community planning. Statistics show us that density of population goes hand in hand with frequency of deaths, sickness and crime. On every side we find overwhelming evidence of the value of proper community planning and development and the growing desire for better living conditions among the people. The diagnosis is made, the remedy-town planning-is known and we shall pay a well deserved penalty if we do not apply it.

There is present in every stratum of population an all embracing civic awakening which affects both men and women. Discontent with the present order is everywhere pregnant with great promises for the future. Democracy in its broadest interpretation is taking the place of bureaucraey and plutocracy, while political parties are coming to represent true public sentiment and interest, where partisanship based upon a spoils system is being relegated to the junk heap of social inefficiency. The women are taking a large share of the social burden that social inefficiency has created in the past, and they should be among the first to realize the importance of suburbanizing the wage earner and restoring to him the right to a proper home located in fitting surroundings and related to the community in a way that will make his or her presence in the community count for its full value.

Town planning deals with the distribution and arrangement of building land so as to avoid congestion. It deals with the location of shops and factories so as to make them more accessible and vet unobjectionable to the home districts in which the wage earners must live. Community planning deals with transportation and street development so as to provide the greatest facility of distribution of population, accessibility to the industrial and social centers and easy access to food markets necessary to insure a proper standard of living on a moderate income. Town planning deals with sewage systems, water supply, waste disposal systems, so as to insure the greatest protection of the health of the people, while it concerns itself with the distribution of churches, schools, parks and playgrounds, so as to give every man, woman and child an opportunity to develop spiritually, intellectually and physically.

The distribution and development of civic centers are the last but not the least of the functions of town planning. and the presence or absence of these centers determines success or failure of a plan.

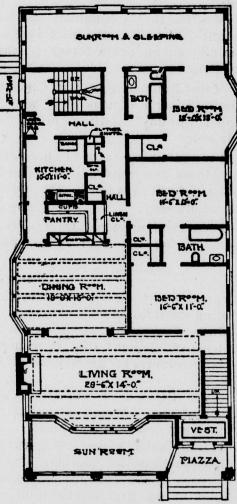

These are large claims, but they are

FOUNDERS OF THE CITY OF SOUTH SAN FRANCISCO

THE SOUTH SAN FRANCISCO LAND AND IMPROVEMENT COMPANY designed in its original plan to make of South San Francisco a great manufacturing center. With that object in view, it originally purchased 3500 acres of land in San Mateo County, on the bay front, five miles south of the ity of San Francisco. Since the original purchase, the company has added greatly to its holdings by the purchase of large tracts of adjoining lands, giving to it a perfect environment for the complete development of a great manufacturing city.

The faith which this Company had in its enterprise has been manifest to everyone by the large expenditure it has made in the development of this property. Every foundation which goes to make a perfect condition for manufacture has been already solidly installed, and is a rapidly growing city; it is a railroad terminal; it is on the main line of the Southern Pacific Railroad, and accessible to all railroads; has deep water communication; owns and operates for its industries a railroad connecting with the Southern Pacific and the water front; has electric street car service from factory to Town, and direct to San Francisco; has an Electric Light and Power Company; owns an independent Water Works, and has an abundance of fresh water for factory and house; has wharves and docks; a perfect sewerage system; a Bank and a Town Hall; and a population of over 3000 people an extensive and fine residence district, where everyone may secure lands at reasonable prices and on favorable terms, as homes for themselves and their families.

FACTORY SITES

can be obtained from the South San Francisco Land and Improvement Company on most reasonable terms.

The completion of the Bay Shore Tunnels has placed South San Francisco on the main lines of the Southern Pacific Railroad, and forty passenger trains per day connect it with the outside world.

Owing to the completion of the Dumbarton Bridge and Cutoff, South San Francisco will soon have all railroads which center in San Francisco passing through its midst.

Many industries are already established here, chief of which are the Western Meat Company, the Wool Pullery, the Soap Works, the Steiger Pottery Works, the W. P. Fuller & Co. Paint Works, the South San Francisco Lumber and Supply Company, the Pacific Coast Steel Company, the Pacific Car and Equipment Company, the Standard Corrugated Pipe Works, and other enterprises, all of which are in operation to-day. The Meese Gottfried Machinery Company and the Enterprise Foundry of San Francisco have each recently made purchases of land, and South San Francisco is plainly destined to fulfill all that its promoters had hoped.

AUTO DRIVERS SHOULD USE CAUTION AT RAILROAD CROSSINGS

Within twenty months, in California, on country roads, there have been twenty-six lives lost and thirty-two persons injured in accidents at railroad crossings that could have been avoided had the drivers used due caution. This statement is made by railroad companies after getting statistics from special observers and from citizens in the communities who were serving on boards of inquiry.

The figures exclude city streets, where rush of traffic and noise may have been contributing factors. Neither do they include cases where persons were "joy-riding" or the drivers intoxicated.

The railroad companies are calling upon automobile men and others to help in accident prevention. On this subject, the Chicago Tribune, in an editorial, recently said:

cross a city street, they ought to halt, look both ways, and when sure the music and a good time promised. road is clear, go ahead. When they fail to do this and get run over, automobilists say, 'Why did they not take notice?'

When a street car comes by cordially invited to attend these sera grade crossing the conductor looks to see that all is clear. Why not automobiles?

"A train does not come on one with the stealthy approach of an auto.

"Automobile clubs might well advise their members-to do at railroad crossings what they say pedestrians should do at all street crossings-avoid 'contributory negligence'".

Watchman stationed by the Southern Pacific Company at crossings in San Francisco found that seventy per cent, by actual count, of all auto drivers at crossings with railroads fail to look to right or left. Similarly in Stockton, out of 4,080 pedestrians only 60 looked up and down the tracks before crossing.

The California Outlook, an organ of the Progressives in this state, published at Los Angeles has sent this notice to its readers: "A straw vote is being taken to test the sentiment of our readers as between Francis J. Thoughts Worth Remembering.

Blessed are they who have the gift God's best gifts; it involves many things; but above all the power of gettings out of oneself and seeing and appreciating whatever is noble and loving in another.

The trouble with most people who do a kind act is that they throw all crusts on the water and expect to get frosted angel cake in return.

The State Viticultural Commission went on record as favoring the determination that California shall insist that the only pure wines are those that are unadulterated with anything not the product of the grape. This decision was reached after a session in the Capitol. The Commission refused to accept the suggested definition of pure wine sent out by the United States Agricultural Department, which would allow the addition of sugar and water. The Commission will insist that all wines containing any of these substances shall be marked as modified, ameliorated or corrected wine.

State-Wide Downpour Gladdens Hearts of Farmers

The rain came, as had been predicted by the Weather Bureau. Rain commenced falling Monday at midnight, continued all night and Tuesday during the day and night, covering almost the entire state, soaking the ground thoroughly and doing an inestimable amount of good. San Francisco received a generous share of the moisture, 1.76 inches having fallen in that city during the twentyfour hours. Red Bluff experienced the most generous downpour, with 2.32 inches for the twenty-four hours. The south did not fare quite so well.

They protested paying a tax during liquidation, claiming they were not conducting a banking business.

The testimony revealed the interesting fact that Jones had been giving a "shot of hop" with a plate of soup to his custowers. The police at first were at a loss to account for Jones' big business in the soup line, but when they discovered the secret of it they immediately arrested Jones.

Now that the harvesting of the Tulare County orange crop is well under way, it is possible to more accurately estimate the size of the crop of the present season than a few weeks ago. It is now practically certain that Tulare County will send to market this season 4500 carloads of oranges, and some well-posted packers place the figure at 5000. Thus, Tulare County will this year be the second largest orange producer in California, if not the first. If Tulare has already advanced to first place, that is the position she will hold for many years to come, for a very large proportion of her 40,000 acres planted to oranges has not yet come into bearing.

The first shipments of 118,000 pounds, which came in on October 5th, never went through the Custom-house at all. but were transshipped to British Columbia, whither they were originally

Since then 330,000 pounds have come in on October 31st and November 7th. Of this, 94,000 pounds was consigned to British Columbia and a like amount ings, 21 per cent passing at a high rate went to Nevada and Los Angeles. It is said that one of the largest importers brought his butter to meet Government contracts, and is holding it in cold storage for this purpose. It is admitted at the same time that thirty tons has been bought and stored for a rise in prices.

The stationary market that has prevailed for some time is ascribed to the presence of the Australian product. Commission men declare that as the Australian butter costs 69 cents a two-pound roll laid down in the port of San Francisco. It is useless to expect importations to lower prices. The same grade of local butter is retailing at 72 cents, so that there is not much margin. The hotels and restaurants and looked in both directions before are said to have taken the bulk of the imported butter offered.

THE COMMERCIAL CLUB.

An Asset to Any Town Provided It Is Well Organized.

A commercial club is the greatest asset of any town, providing it is a commercial club, says a contributor to the University Missourian. But there has been an unwarranted misuse of the term in the last few years. Many so called commercial clubs are merely unorganized groups of business men of a city who meet whenever any one comes along with some pet scheme. They act only when acted upon. But a real commercial club is something more than that.

A real commercial club is one that meets regularly. At each meeting some of the members give talks on things they think will make the town better. The needs of a town are discussed and ways and means of getting these needs satisfied are brought out. In that way they are ready to adopt any new plan that is for the best interests of their city. There is just as much difference between an organization of this sort and one that is loosely organized as between a well trained army and an army of new recruits.

There are so many things that a good commercial club can do that it seems hardly possible to conceive of a town not having one. Yet there are many towns throughout this state which do not have one. They can look after the sanitation of the city. paving, street cleaning, fire protection, safety of public buildings, nuisances and other things. They can watch out for new enterprises and send representatives to interview prospective promoters and show them why they should come to the city.

You can notice that the town which prospers most has the liveliest commercial club.

Negotiations between California and the Federal Government in the exchange of lieu land has been held up on the order of Secretary of the Interior Lane, and Attorney-General Webb has in preparation a letter of protest to the Secretary, according to information given out at Surveyor-General Kingsbury's office. Between 350,000 and 400,000 acres of land is involved in the controversy. In addition. Surveyor-General Kingsbury said, title to thousands of acres of land previously listed to the State and sold to individuals may be doubtful. Secretary Lane held up listing on the ground that the Congressional act of 1891, under which lieu lands have been 227 GRAND AVENUE exchanged for school lands since 1901, did not authorize the Secretary of the Interior to exchange the lands.

RESPONSIBILITY FOR RAILROAD CROSSING ACCIDENTS

While actual statistics show that only one and one-half per cent of automobile accidents occur at railroad crossings, nevertheless this one and one-half per cent is so large that automobile associations are co-operating with the railroads to minimize the number and bring about a greater exercise of care on the part of pedestrians and drivers of motor vehicles In making an effort to ascertain wherein the responsibility for crossing accidents might rest, some observations were recently made by one of the railroads with offices in San Francisco, and the statements of the results, in volving 16,522 motor vehicles, 4246 teams and 4526 pedestrians, shows that 69 per cent of the drivers of motor vehicles took no precautions, whatever, to prevent being struck at crossof speed.

It is pointed out by railway officials that the millions necessary for added the United States are considered esgrade protection would levy an extra sential to the protection of the Patoll on the rates paid by shippers and passengers. They are touched by the suffering and misery of animals, and the pain which they feel when they see them cruelly used has been the means of exciting other persons to pity and compassion." -M. de Sailly, a French schoolmaster in Algiers.

Questions About New Law's Meaning Answered by Legal Expert.

By CHARLES A. BRODEK, Member of the New York Bar Association, New York city.

T has been estimated that the income tax law will directly affect more than half a million citizens and aliens. Probably millions will be indirectly affected in one way or another by the provisions of the law for payment of the tax "at the source." In addition to those directly and indirectly affected, there are many who will be concerned to know whether or not they come within the provisions of the new law. In the light of more than twenty years' experience in handling tax questions from the legal standpoint. I have sought to set down the questions which would naturally come to the mind of the inquiring citizen and to set down briefly and in simple language the answers to such questions.

Preliminary Questions.

Q.-When was this law passed? A.-Oct. 3, 1913, and went into effect at once. It forms section 2 of the tariff bill. Q.-Does it affect any income I received before the law was passed? A .- Yes; it taxes income from March 1, 1913.

Q.-Why did the law fix March 1, 1913. as the date from which income was to be taxed? A.-Because the United States supreme court had held some years ago that the government had no constitutional power to pass such a law, and it was therefore necessary to adopt a constitutional amendment giving the government power to tax incomes. This constitutional amendment went into effect the last part of February, 1913, and congress therefore taxed incomes from the very earliest date.

Q.-Has the government the power to pass a law in October, 1913, taxing income which I received before that date? A .- It has been claimed that this provision of the income tax law is unconstitutional, because income received from March to October, 1913, had become part of capital at the time the income tax law was passed. It is unquestioned that the federal government has no power to tax a man's capital directly. Whether this provision of the law is unconstitutional is extremely doubt-

Q.-Have I the right to refrain from paying the tax on income received before the law passed until the courts have determined whether this tax was valid? A .-No: you must pay the tax next June, and you cannot await any court's decision.

Q.-Does that mean if this provision is invalid I will lose what I paid to the government? A.-No. You should pay that portion of the tax which relates to your income before October, 1913, under protest. If this feature of the law is held to be invalid the government will then repay to you this part of the tax. The government has always been very fair in refunding taxes paid under any law found to be invalid.

Individuals Subject to the Tax.

Q.-What persons are subject to the tax? A .- Every citizen of the United States, whether residing at home or abroad, and every alien residing in the United States are taxable upon their entire net income minus specific exemptions. Every nonresident alien is taxable upon his net income derived from property in the United States or from carrying on any business or profession in the United States.

Q.-Who pays the tax? A.-The tax will be collected either directly from the taxpayer or through the employer, agent, trustee or other person having control of his income. The latter method is termed 'collection at the source.'

Corporations Subject to the Tax.

Q.-What corporations are subject to the tax? A.-Every corporation, joint stock company or association and every insurance company organized in the United States is subject to a tax of 1 per cent upon its net income, and every foreign corporation is subject to a tax upon its net income from business transacted or capital invested within the United States.

Q.-Are any concerns exempt? A.-Yes. Agricultural organizations, mutual savings banks, fraternal beneficiary societies, building loan associations, cemetery companies and religious, charitable, scientific and educational corporations, business leagues, boards of trade and civic organizations are not subject to the tax. They are clearly defined in the law, so that other corporations may not use these exceptions as a loophole.

Tax Returns.

Q.-What individuals are required to make tax returns? A.-Every person of lawful age subject to the tax having a net income of $3,000 or over for the taxable year. In addition, all guardians, trustees, executors, administrators, agents, receivers and conservators must make a tax return for the person for whom they act.

Q.-Suppose there are two or more guardians, trustees, executors, etc., must each make a return? A .- No; a return made by any one is sufficient.

Q.-Are there any individuals who need not make a tax return? A.—Persons having net incomes not exceeding $3,000, persons for whom the return is made by an employer or by a guardian, trustee, executor, etc., and who have no other income, and persons whose income is derived solely from dividends on stock in corporations which pay tax and whose net income does not exceed $20,000.

Q.-Does a copartnership have to file a

OF INCOME TAX MADE CLEAR

Its Involved Phraseology Has Made It Difficult to Understand.

----return? A.—No; only if required by the commissioner or collector; each partner must make an individual return.

Q.-What corporations must make returns? A .- All corporations subject to the tax. Q.-When must the return be filed? A. Individuals and corporations must file the return on or before March 1.

Q.-For what period is the tax levied? A.-For the calendar year, except in 1913, when it is levied from March 1, 1913, only. Q.-Suppose a corporation has a fiscal year which does not correspond with the calendar year; must it make its return for the calendar or for its fiscal year? A .-The tax is levied and the return must be filed for the calendar year, but the corporation may designate and use the last day of any month as the day for closing its fiscal year, provided it gives thirty days' notice to the district collector. The tax is then levied for the fiscal year, and the return must be filed within sixty days after the close of the fiscal year and the tax paid within 120 days after the close of the fiscal year.

Q.-Where must the return be filed? A. -An individual must file the return where he resides or has his principal place of business; a corporation or a nonresident must file where the principal place of business is located, and the trustee, guardian, executor, etc., must file the return where he resides or where the instrument under which he acts is recorded.

Q.-What must the return contain? A .-The gross income and certain deductions and allowances which will be explained

Q.-Must the return be sworn to? A.-Yes. In case of a corporation the oath or affirmation is made by an officer.

Gross Income.

Q.-What does gross income mean under the income tax law? A.-Gross income is defined in the statute as gains, profits and income derived from salaries, wages or compensation for personal service or from professions, vocations, businesses, trade. commerce or sales or dealings in real or personal property growing out of the ownership or use of or interest in real or personal property, also interest, rent, dividends, securities, or the transaction of any lawful business, or gains, profits and income from any source whatever.

Q.-Does gross income include property acquired by gift or by will? A.-No. but it includes the income from such prop-

Q.-Will proceeds of life insurance policies paid upon death or paid upon the maturity of a term or upon surrender of a policy be included as income? A.-No.

Rates of Taxation.

Q .- What is the rate of taxation? A .-The normal rate is 1 per cent of the net income, and this applies to corporations as well as to individuals. In the case of individuals having a net income exceeding $20,000 the law provides for an additional tax.

Q.-What is the rate of the additional tax against incomes of individuals? A .-One per cent on amount by which income exceeds $20,000 but does not exceed $50,000; per cent on amount by which income exceeds $50,000 but does not exceed $75,000; 3 per cent on amount by which income exceeds $75,000 but does not exceed $100,000: 4 per cent on amount by which income exceeds $100.000 but does not exceed $250.000; per cent on amount by which income ex ceeds $250,000 but does not exceed $500,000; per cent on amount by which income ex-

Q.-Are corporations ever liable for the additional tax? A.-Never.

Q.-In calculating net income for the additional tax, are the same deductions made as in calculating net income for the normal tax of 1 per cent? A .- Yes, with the exception that in calculating net income for the additional tax neither dividends nor amount of income on which tax is withheld at the source will be deducted.

Exemptions and Deductions.

Q.-Is there any exemption allowed to a taxable person? A .- Yes, $3,000; and if the person is married and his wife lives with him the exemption is $1,000 more, making $4,000 in all. The same provision is made if the person making the return is a married woman whose husband lives with her. Q.-Can husband and wife each deduct the additional $1,000? A.—No. Only one deduction of $4,000 shall be made from the aggregate income of husband and wife when living together.

Q.-Can guardians, trustees, executors. etc., deduct the exemption of $3,000 for the benefit of the person for whom they act? A.-Yes. Q.-What deductions can be made by an individual for expenses, etc.? A .- 1. Necessary expenses actually paid in carrying on business. 2. All interest paid on indebtedness. 3. All national, state, county, school and municipal taxes. 4. All losses actually sustained in trade or arising from fire, storms or shipwreck and not compensated by insurance or otherwise. 5. Debts due and found worthless and charged off. 6. Reasonable allowance for wear and tear. 7. Dividends received from corporations which pay income tax. Amount of income on which tax is paid or withheld at the source, provided such income does not exceed $3,000 or is irregular as to time and amount. 9. Interest on obligations of the United States, a state or a political subdivision of a state. 10. Salaries of the present president of the United States, present judges of the federal courts and the compensation of all officers, employees of a state or a political subdivision of a state, provided the same is not paid by the United States government. 11. The exemption of $3,000 or $4,000 for couples living together. As above explained, these deductions are allowed in calculating net income for the normal tax. For the additional tax items 7 and 8 are not allowed.

personal, living or ramily expenses be deducted? A.-No.

Q.-Is an assessment for local benefits deemed a tax and deductible as such? A.-No. The statute expressly provides that such assessments shall not be de-

Q.-Can any deduction be allowed for cost of new buildings, improvements or betterments made to increase the value of any property? A.-No. Q.-What is meant by the necessary expenses paid in carrying on business? A.—Clerk hire, rent, lighting, heating, stationery, delivery charges, etc.

Q.-Suppose I have allowed state or local taxes to accumulate for several years; can I deduct the payment of accumulated taxes, or can I only deduct the taxes which fell due within the year for which I made an income tax return? A .-You can deduct all the tax payments, whether they were accumulated or not.

Q.-What deductions are allowed to corporations? A.-1. The ordinary and necessary expenses incurred in maintaining and operating the business and properties of the company, including rentals. 2. All losses actually sustained and not compensated by insurance or otherwise, including reasonable allowance for depreciation. 3. Interest paid on bonded and other indebtedness to an amount of such indebtedness not exceeding one-half the interest bearing indebtedness and its outstanding capital stock. 4. All taxes, national or state or imposed by a foreign government. Q.-Is a corporation entitled to an exemption of $3,000 or $4,000 like an individual? A.-No. There are no exemptions in the case of corporations; they are allowed to deduct the expenses, losses, interest and taxes as already explained.

Q.—Individuals may deduct dividends; can a corporation deduct dividends received from other corporations? A.-No. while this appears to result in a double taxation, a tax of 1 per cent having been paid upon the dividends by the corporation from which they were received, congress intended to tax dividends received by one corporation from another.

Q.-Does the present income tax law take the place of the corporation income tax law of 1909? A.—Yes, but for the months of January and February, 1913, the old corporation income tax law remains in force. The present income tax law goes into effect from March 1, 1913.

Collection at Source.

Q.-What is meant by the collection of this tax "at the source?" A .- The law provides that all persons, firms and corporations paying interest, rent, salaries, annuities or other fixed or determinable annual or periodical gains, profits and income of any other person exceeding $3,000 per year shall withhold 1 per cent and pay it to the government as the normal tax upon that portion of the income of the person who was entitled to receive the rent, salary, income, annuity, etc.

Q.-If the annual rent on my home or place of business is $2.500 and I know that the landlord has other income which would make him taxable, shall I deduct 1 per cent from my rent? A.-No; you can only make the deduction provided the rent you pay exceeds $3,000 per year, and this same principle applies to all payments of rent, salary, interest, annuities, etc., with the sole exception of interest on corporate

Q.-If the interest on corporate bonds amounts to less than $3,000, must the l per cent be deducted at the source? A .-Yes; the law provides that where the income is interest on corporate bonds the tax must be deducted at the source, irrespective of the amount of the interest payment.

Q .- If rent or salary payable by me amounts to $3,000 or less I understand 1 withhold no tax, but if it amounts to more than $3,000, do I withhold the tax on the excess or on the whole amount? A .-You withhold the tax on the whole amount. For example, if rent or salary due from you amounts to $3,000 or less you deduct nothing, but if it amounts to $3,500 you must deduct $35-namely, 1 per cent of the entire $3,500.

Q.-Can the person entitled to rent, salary, interest, annuity, etc., claim an exemption? A.—Yes; by filing a notice with you he can claim and obtain an exemption of $3,000 (or $4,000 if married and with a wife living with him); in that case you should only deduct the 1 per cent from the excess over the exemption. For example, if a landlord or employee is entitled to $5,000 a year and files with you an exemption as a married man amounting to $4,000 you would only deduct $10-namely, 1 per cent on the excess of $1,000.

Q.-How about the collection of coupons on corporate bonds? A.-The interest is to be deducted by the corporation. The owner of the coupon must then file a certificate of ownership with the bank or other concern which receives the coupon for collection, otherwise that bank would have to deduct the tax and attach its own certificate, giving the name of the owner. The owner has a right to claim exemption up to $3,000 if single or $4,000 if married. The forms of certificates of ownership and of exemptions have been prescribed and may be obtained from the collector. Q .- In deducting the tax from rent, salary and interest, shall I deduct from each payment or wait until $3,000 has been paid? A.-Under the regulations you need not withhold the tax until such time as the rent, salary or interest shall have reached an aggregate in excess of $3,000. The tax subsequently is to be deducted from the full amount or from $3,000 or $4,000 less if notice of exemption has been filed.

Q.-What tax shall be deducted in 1913? A.-For the year 1913 everything is on a five-sixths basis, because the law will have been in effect for ten months. All calculations of exemptions, deductions, income, etc., for 1913 shall be taken at fivesixths of the whole annual amount in each case. Q.-Suppose the landlord or employee entitled to receive more than $3,000 a year has business expenses, losses, etc., which bring his net income below $3,000 in all; can he, by filing a statement of such business expenses, losses, etc., obtain a full payment from me without deduction? A .-You must still deduct 1 per cent. He will be entitled to obtain the benefit of such deduction by application to the collector. Q.-What do I do with the amounts 1 deduct from payments of salary, interest, rent, annuity, etc.? A .- You hold them and make separate returns for such deduction at the same time you make your own return. You pay the amount of the deductions to the collector between June 1 and June 30. Individuals and corporations will be notified of the amount upon which they are liable on or before June 1.

Publicity of Returns.

Q.-Are the returns made by an individual or corporation open to the inspection of the public? A .- All returns, whether by individuals or corporations, are public records, but they may be inspected only upon the order of the president under rules and regulations to be prescribed by the secretary of the treasury and approved by the president.

Q.-Can income tax returns be inspected by the tax officers of any state, city or county? A.-No, except as they may be inspected by any citizen, as explained in my answer to the previous question. The only exception is that officers of any state which imposes a general income tax may have access to the returns.

Penalties.

Q.-What is the penalty for neglect or refusal to make a return on time? A.— Five per cent of the amount of the tax is added and 1 per cent per month from the time it became due, and a fine may be imposed of not less than $20 or more than $1,000 in the case of an individual or not more than $10,000 in the case of a corpo-

Q.-What is the penalty for making a false or fraudulent return? A.-A fine not exceeding $2.000, imprisonment for one year, or both, in the case of an individual or officer of a corporation and a fine not exceeding $10,000 in the case of a corporation.

Q.-Is there any penalty if a landlord or employee or other person from whom a tax must be deducted at the source files a false statement respecting the $3,000 exemption or $4,000 for a married couple? A.—Yes; a fine of $300.

Q.-Can a man's or company's books and accounts be examined by the collector? A.-The United States courts can compel attendance, production of books and testimony in cases where persons are summoned by the collector.

IS LAST OBSTRUCTION TO CANAL NAVIGATION.

Engineers With Big Force Opening Way Through Cucaracha Slide.

The task of opening a way through Cucaracha slide, the sole remaining obstacle to the navigation of the Panama canal, has been carried on as "rush work" since the blowing up of the Gamboa dike, according to the Canal Record.

The engineers have been putting forth herculean efforts to clear a navigable channel through this nearly half mile long obstruction, but owing to the peculiar mobility of the vast mass of earth and rock the work of hundreds of shovels and thousands of gallons of jetted water is often undone overnight by a slumping back into place of the material removed or by additional slides from the sides of the channel.

A ton and a half of dynamite was exploded in one blast Oct. 10 without any substantial result so far as increasing the flow of water across the dam was concerned. Since that date three shifts of men. working eight hours each in rotation, have been trying to create a channel by sluicing with hose and hydraulic monitors. Before this attack the material had been yielding slowly, and finally the engineers have utilized a big suction dredge.

Meanwhile the sharp rise in the level of Gatun lake Oct. 21 has increased the size of the ditch so that now 7.000.-000 cubic feet of water daily is passing over the slide, and by this time sufficient water has been admitted to fill the two miles of Culebra cut between the slide and the first of the Pacific locks, enabling the big steam dredges to enter the cut and operate on the earth barrier.

ONE WAY TO VISIT

The Tarahumare of Mexico Has a Style All His Own.

NEVER STARTLES HIS HOST.

He Is Too Politely Deliberate For That and the Compliment Is Faithfully Returned—Ceremonies In the House Have a Rather Abrupt Ending.

For a barbarian the Tarahumare is very polite personage. In his language he even has a word "reke," which is the equivalent of the English "please" and which he uses constantly. When speaking to a stranger or leaving a person, he draws attention to his action by saying, "I am going." As he grows civilized, however, he loses his good manners. In spite of this he is not hospitable;

the guest gets food, but there is no room for him in the house of a Tarahumare. A visitor never thinks of entering a house without first giving the family ample time to get ready to receive him. When he approaches a friend's home good manners require him to stop sometimes as far as twenty or thirty yards off. If he is on more intimate terms with the family. he may come nearer, and make his presence known by coughing; then he sits down, selecting some little knoll from which he can be readily seen.

In order not to embarrass his friends he does not even look at the house. but remains sitting there gazing into vacancy, his back or side turned toward the homestead. Should the host be absent the visitor may thus sit for a couple of hours; then he' will rise and go slowly away again. But under no circumstances will he enter the home, unless formally invited, "because," he says, "only the dogs enter houses uninvited."

Never will the woman of the house commit such a gross breach of eti-Flying motorcycle will be the next quette as to go out and inform him of her husband's absence, to save the caller the trouble of waiting, nor will she, if alone at home, make any state-

> The Tarahumare never does anything without due deliberation; therefore he may for a quarter of an hour discuss with his wife the possible purport of the visit before he goes out to see the man. They peep through the cracks in the wall at him, and if they happen to be eating or doing anything they may keep the visitor waiting for half an hou?.

Finally the host shakes out the blanket on which he has been sitting. throws it around himself, and, casting a rapid glance to the right and left as he goes through the door, goes to take a seat a few yards distant from the caller. After some meditation on either side the conversation, as in more civilized society, opens with remarks about the weather and the prospects for rain.

When this subject is exhausted and the host's curiosity as to where the man came from, what he is doing and where he is going is satisfied, the former may go back to the house and fetch some meat and pinole for the traveler. The object of the visit not infrequently is an invitation to take part in some game or foot race, and as the men are sure to remain undisturbed they generally reach some understanding.

A friend of the family is, of course, finally invited to enter the house, and the customary salutation is "Assaga!" "Sit down." In this connection it may be noted that the Tarahumares in conversation look sidewise, or even turn their backs toward the person they speak to.

After having eaten, the guest will arefully return every vessel in which the food was given to him, and when he rises he hands back the skin on which he was seated. Should occasion require the host will say: "It is getting late and you cannot return to your home tonight Where are you going to sleep? There is a good cave over yon-

With this he may indicate where the visitor may remain overnight. He will also tell him where he may find wood for the fire, and he will bring him food, but not unless the weather is very tempestuous will he invite an outsider to sleep in the house.-From Carl Lumholtz's "Unknown Mexico."

THE TWISTED

A Story of the Orinoco

By CLARISSA MACKIE

It was very quiet in that jungle along the upper reaches of the Orinoco river.

Charles Goodell, orchid hunter for a rich Philadelphia collector, stood on the high bank of the river and looked longingly up at the cluster of mauve orchids clinging to the top of a rotted tree trunk that overhung the river. It was a lofty tree, and, bowed with disease and age, it bent its head, decked with the delicate butterfly blossoms, over the slothful river that it would bridge when it crashed down in the hurricane season.

Goodell's Carib Indians had refused to climb the tree and were now squatting sullenly around a little fire on which a bird was cooking.

The mauve orchids tempted Goodell beyond discretion. He decided to mount the tree and secure them himself, although he knew the risk he ran in doing so.

If the tree should fall under his weight he would be flung into the river, a prey to the vicious alligators or the venomous snakes that abounded.

But the securing of this particular specimen would not only be a triumph. but it meant a liberal sum of money added to the store he was saving up for a home and the girl he expected to make his wife on his return.

He had examined the orchid through his fieldglasses, and he was convinced that it was the long lost specimen that Mr. Clay, his employer, had offered $10,000 for. There were the delicate mauve outer leaves with the hearts of flaming crimson and orange, with marvelous stripings of black.

There were two ways of reaching the mauve orchids. One was to climb the tree trunk with the risk of weighting it down to destruction when he reached the upper part. This way was hindered by a tangle of great vines that before he could reach the coveted prize. The other way was to climb up the great twisted vine that hung downward from the very point where the orchids clung to the tree. The vine swung almost within his reach now, and its lower end touched the surface of the water.

"The twisted vine," he decided at last, and, tossing aside his hat, he pulled on heavy gauntlets, saw that his leather puttees covered every exposed portion of his lower limbs and took hold of the twisted vine.

His Indians gathered around the tree with the eager curiosity of children in the performance of his difficult feat. As he pulled himself up by the strength of his massive arms and shoulders his legs and feet were twined about the thick vine.

Suddenly the Indians uttered shrill cries of alarm and disappeared in the jungle.

Goodell, glancing down, saw nothing to frighten them, and, noting that his specimens were safe, went stolidly up on his perlious climb; the vine swayed now and then under his weight, but its upper tendrils appeared to be firmly fastened to the tree trunk, while its roots were strongly intrenched in the river bottom.

Goodell did not know when he felt a change in the character of the vine up which he was climbing with the orchids ever growing nearer to his eager touch.

First the twisted vine had been slightly rough, but its bark appeared to be smooth now, sometimes almost slippery to the touch, and once Goodell would have sworn that it moved. But it was cold and clammy. Once his face touched it, and he drew back with a feeling of sickening revulsion. He felt faint and dizzy, and he closed his

When he opened them again it was to confront the real horror of the situation.

No wonder his Caribs had fled in terror. Later they would come back, peering fearfully to gain possession of the specimen cases because their employer would never need them again.

The heavy vine twisted upward to the orchids now only fifteen feet above his head. He looked at them with starting eyes because swaying above them was the monstrous, threatening head of a boa constrictor whose great body was twisted around the vine to which he clung.

How his keen eyes had failed to detect the body of the great snake as it twisted up and around the large trunk of the giant vine he never knew.

Death stared him in the face. If he dropped into the river the monster's tail could catch him ere he fell, and, failing in that, the deadly water serpents would put him out of existence.

Already the body moved sluggishly, but his fascinated eyes did not leave the hideous head among the orchids. The flat eyes regarded him with cold hatred; the ugly mouth grinned.

He heard the distant shouts of his Indians. Even if they had come to him they could not help him. His first downward movement would be the signal for the beginning of the

He closed his eyes and prayed. He thought of his mother and of Alice Blake, the girl he was to marry. His grip loosened on the twisted vine, so dreadfully imbued with life; his feet slipped. The vine moved.

He looked up and saw that the ugly head was lowered.

Again he slipped down and again the vine moved.

Cold sweat broke out on his body and his face dripped.

Now he bent his body and looked down at the tail of the serpent. It had loosened from the vine and was moving to and fro like the pendulum of a clock.

Death above and death below! Well, he would die fighting.

His hand found his revolver, and he wriggled around until he could see the head again.

It had flattened itself among the orchids and was regarding him coldly as before. He would wait until it lifted again, and when its throat was presented to view he would try to blow the head off. It would be difficult at that distance with a single shot, and the death agonies of the reptile might involve his own death.

Goodell closed his eyes again and muttered a prayer as the strongest men do in moments of danger. The head was lifting again and resumed its swaying movement. Higher, higher it went, until the mottled throat was revealed.

Spat! The bullet went over its head. His arm was unsteady; he must try again. Again he raised the automatic revolver. and again it sounded on the heavy jungle air. Spat! The head of the reptile wagged violently and all outlines were lost as the bullet found its mark. The great body trembled violently, the tail lashed to and fro, and the vine slipped downward. Charles Goodell slipped down, his eyes ever on the horrid specter of the descending head. Once he glanced below and saw that the tail was lashing the water. He took courage and slipped farther down. The great body of the dying reptile came down with him.

Three feet above the river bank he could stand the horror no longer, and he dropped, clutching at a young green vine that swung harmlessly near.

The green vine held and broke his fall. He swung violently to and fro, and when a favorable opportunity presented itself he loosened his hold and fell upon the ground close beside his heap of specimen cases. Then he fainted away for the first time in his adventurous life.

He recovered consciousness almost immediately, for the shots had brought back his frightened Indians, and they gathered about him with scared looks and pointing fingers.

He took out his emergency flask and restored in a measure his shattered nerves. He sent them to the river to look at the dead carcass of the boa constrictor, but always they came back and gazed at him as though upon a spirit from another world.

Looking at his watch, he found that three hours had passed since he had climbed the twisted vine. It had seemed like fifteen minutes. No wonder he felt like an old man under the consuming fear of those three horrible hours.

The continued wonder of his guides excited his impatience, and he drew out a pocket mirror and looked at him-

His face peered at him pale and haggard. His abundant hair was white

The wondering Indians now climbed the specimen cases, and the little expedition turned down the river.

Many weeks later Charles Goodell appeared in Philadelphia and delivered orchids came last.

"How about these?" demanded Mr. Clay eagerly.

"Those," said Goodell slowly, "are the price of my nerve and a portion of my youth. I shall never hunt another orchid, Mr. Clay. The price of the mauve orchids is $25,000."

"I will pay it," said the rich man quickly, "and afterward you may tell me the reason why you value them so highly."

So Charles Goodell told him the story of the twisted vine as I have told it to you.

No Extreme Gowns In Miss Wilson's Trousseau.

Like that of the last White House bride, Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, nee Alice Roosevelt, the trousseau of Miss Jessie Wilson has all been made in this country. In democratic simplicity the present bride elect has gone the colonel's daughter one better, for every gown except the bridal robe has been selected from ready to wear stock in the best shops of Washington. Baltimore and New York.

The lingerie, on the other hand, has all been prepared under the personal supervision of Miss Wilson and her mother. Furthermore, these dainty belongings are of exquisitely fine fabrics and entirely handmade. In fact. for several months the bride and her sisters have contributed articles made by their own fair hands to the "hope" chest.

Numberless gifts for the trousseau have been sent to Miss Wilson from all over the country. Among them are several pieces of exquisitely fine hand embroidered lingerie from Mrs. Marshall, wife of the vice president, with other articles equally charming from ladies of the cabinet and from many of the girls for whom and with whom Miss Jessie labored in the settlement work which has always been the deepest interest in her life.

From those who have had an opportunity of seeing some of the trousseau it is learned that in frocks and hats the predominating color scheme is violet in its many pinkish shadings.

Although the clothes are all up to date, they are not extreme in point of numbers or in style. The wedding gown is of handsome white satin, soft and lustrous and adorned with beautiful old family lace.

The bridesmaid gowns are of pink charmeuse veiled with chiffon, and the hats are smart little affairs of gold lace with "stickups" in front of silk

It is to be a "pink" wedding, and the decorations in the east room, where the ceremony will take place on Nov. 25 at 4 in the afternoon, will be of pink chrysanthemums of the new "Jessie Wilson" variety.

What Would You Do If--

Bernard Shaw asks a male critic of the militant movement what he would do if "a government of women coming to the conclusion that he, being a male, was not human, refused him the vote, the tree without protest, and the mauve excluded him from parliament and orchids which had blanched Goodell's from the juries by whom persons of hair to obtain were packed away in his sex had to be tried, turned him out of court on occasions when questions most intimately affecting his sex were at issue, wrote up on the walls of the churches that a woman's property included her ox and her ass and her husband and everything that was hers and absolutely refused to be moved from this position by any appeal to reason or feeling, merely pointing out superciliously from time to time that his letters showed an unbalanced mind and that some of the hest men. at issue, wrote up on the walls of the his consignment of valuable orchids to cluded her ox and her ass and her hushis employer. But the case of mauve band and everything that was hers mind and that some of the best men had never had votes, had avoided servglad to wheel perambulators instead of unsexing themselves by pushing into ing on juries and had been proud and unsexing themselves by pushing into women's professions."

The Suspender Girl.

The shirt waist girl is now going in for suspenders, but they are a glorified version of the idea which she has stolen from her brother's wardrobe. In fact, so gorgeous are they that it seems a pity that they must be covered by the middy blouse which she wears with her tennis and golfing skirt. The straps are of dull gold or silver lace supplemented by jeweled chains that hang from each shoulder and in front fasten under a golden horseshoe with a scarab set center.

Too Many Widows.

The mothers' pension law is not always a success, and in some places -in Seattle, for instance-it is quite remarkable the number of husbandless women who apply for aid. Some men have divorced as many as four wives, and all of them are asking for pensions. Many of the husbands have gone to Alaska.

HUERTA COUNTS HIS FIGHTING FORCES

Governors to Report How Many Soldiers Can Be Mustered

By President Huerta's friends the attitude of the executive is described as to the prospective action by the United States, rather than one of anxiety. They say he has given them no indication of changing his mind about not resigning, and is proceeding with the affairs of the Government with all equanimity.

They add that he regards as probable intervention by the United state Governors to report immediately state overnors to report immediately how many soldiers they can have ready by November 20th. The official's explanation of this is that it is merely part of the plan announced in a recent decree, increasing the army to 150,000 men.

The recruiting campaign by conscription is being carried on vigorously, and there is little doubt that the number of men now ready for service is greater than the supply of rifles.

Fearing that a blockade may be established coincident with the installation of Congress, the officials at the National Palace are showing anxiety regarding the shipment of 15,000 rifles due at Vera Cruz. Failure to land this shipment would be embarrassing to the War Department.

The Chinese question has assumed a serious turn in the Republic of Panama. All the Chinese merchants, wholesale and retail, in Panama, in Colon and at points in the interior, numbering more than 1500, acting according to a prearranged plan, closed their places of business after posting notices stating that the doors had been shut for the purpose of taking an inventory. The demonstration was an effort to compel the Panama Government to recede from its program relative to the new registration law. This law compels Chinese residents to take out new certificates of registration and pay an additional fee, or render themselves liable to deportation.

UNIVERSITY PLANS MINISTERS' WEEK

Will Be Given Opportunity to Grasp Rural Problems

A unique application of the advantages of the State University to the State at large and its attempt to be 'all things to all men," is evidenced in the "ministers' week" to be held under the auspices of the College of Agriculture of the University at the University Farm at Davis, from December 1st to 5th, inclusive.

The week has been planned by the University authorities for the purpose of adding to the efficiency of rural clergymen, in acquainting them with the agricultural practices and problems of their time, so that they may be intelligently informed of the business of their people and that the result will bring a broader and better rural life to the State.

The lectures, demonstrations and field trips will be given by the members of the faculty and staff of the fees, or charges of any kind will be made for the week. A tent city will be erected on the school grounds for the accommodation of those taking advantage of "ministers' week," and the farm school dining room will furnish

> The barometer on which the sergeat rests his fears differs from other barometers, being nothing less than a large red tree squirrel known by frequenters of the park as Jerry.

> Jerry, according to Sergeant Mc-Gee, is endowed with a wonderful faculty of forecasting climatic conditions, and the officer places absolute confidence in his predictions; so when the squirrel started to collect immense quantities of green pine cones last week he was kept under strict surveillance and the record of his past performances looked up.

It was discovered that in every case the collection of green pine cones precedes long weeks of cold, miserable weather, with heavy storms.
